Prince Charles pays visit to Tottenham

LESS than 24 hours after he was pictured trudging through floodwaters in Somerset, Prince Charles was back on dry land as he visited Tottenham.

The Prince of Wales was in the area last Wednesday to meet youngsters, residents and entrepreneurs to find out more about Tottenham's regeneration.

The royal visitor spoke with a number of youngsters including pupils from Gladsmore Community School, in Elm Park Avenue, and members of Haringey Youth Council about their experiences of growing up in the area.

The prince then met entrepreneurs at the 639 Enterprise Centre, in High Road, Tottenham, before speaking with residents who were left homeless after rioters torched the Carpetright building, in the same road, on August 6, 2011, and are scheduled to return once restoration work is completed in the spring.

He was then taken to Tottenham Green, where he witnessed work taking place to transform the area into a community and cultural hub.

It was the fourth time the Prince of Wales had visited Tottenham since the riots, during which time his charities have been helping with regeneration.

Haringey Council's cabinet member for regeneration Alan Strickland welcomed the royal visitor to Tottenham.

Beaming: Weike Ezeigwe, who runs Africax5.tv, was one of the entrepreneurs to meet Prince Charles at the 639 Enterprise Centre

He said: "The prince's support has been fantastic and his charities are making a real difference to Tottenham."

"Good things are happening in Tottenham and people are rightly pleased that Prince

Charles is supportive of what's happening here and has been to visit time and again.

"His interest in Tottenham sends a clear message that this is a place people are interested in, care about and want to be."

Illegal HGVs will be caught on camera

RESIDENTS of a Haringey road which has long been used as a rat run by heavy goods vehicles are celebrating after the council agreed to take action against the problem.

Haringey Council has agreed to install a camera in Wightman Road to snap any HGVs using it as a short cut – in breach of a blanket ban on large lorries using roads off Haringay Ladder.

It follows a long campaign by Haringey's Liberal Democrats and ward councillor Karen Alexander said: "Residents have been telling us for a long time about the issues with HGVs illegally using Wightman Road and the Haringay Ladder roads."

"After a long campaign by the Lib Dems, working with residents and residents' groups, the council is finally installing a static camera in Wightman Road to enforce the weight limit ban on them."

The camera is due to be installed at one end of Wightman Road on March 17.

Man charged with attempted murder

A MAN who was being sought in connection with a knife attack has been charged with attempted murder.

Police had appealed for help finding Anthony Powell, of Tenderden Road, Tottenham, following the incident in Potters Bar on January 26.

A 32-year-old man was left with a fractured skull and knife wounds after being attacked at an address in Ashwood Road.

On Tuesday last week, 28-year-old Powell handed himself in at Hatfield Police Station and has since been remanded in custody to appear at St Albans Crown Court next Wednesday.

NO DIVING HERE

A BID to save the diving boards at a Crouch End leisure centre have failed.

More than 1,000 people signed a petition against plans to remove the boards at Park Road Pools, which have been at the Park Road venue for more than 40 years.

But now Fusion Lifestyle, which manages leisure centres across the borough for Haringey Council, has decided to go ahead with the proposal.

It means that anyone wishing to dive will instead have to go to Tottenham Green Leisure Centre, in Philip Lane, Tottenham – more than three miles away.

And there are fears that the membership of Haringey Aquatics diving club, which is based at Park Road, will be badly hit.

The initial plan had been to install a moving floor at the Park Road pool, allowing a number of different activities to take place there.

But further investigations found that the pool would not be deep enough to allow people to dive safely.

And a report by Fusion suggested that were work to take place to allow diving to continue at the pool, it would cost more than £1million and delay improvement works there by more than six months.

The report said: "Diving represents around 180 visits per week of the current usage of the diving pool. The intention is to grow the usage of the pool by another 2,000 visits a week."

"All other activities that take place in the diving pool will be able to continue as they do now. Diving on its own cannot generate the increase in participation."

The decision has been slammed by swimmers, members of Haringey Aquatics and MPs Lynne Featherstone and David Lammy.

Tottenham MP Mr Lammy, who is honorary president of Haringey Aquatics, said: "The diving pit at Park Road Pools is not only an important cultural institution for people across the borough, it is one of the few remaining public diving facilities across England.

"Since 1977, London has seen a 94 per cent reduction in the number of public diving facilities, from 96 to now just six venues."

"However, interest in diving is at an all-time high, no doubt due to the successes of the Olympic Games in 2012."

"As the honorary president of Haringey Aquatics, I am deeply concerned by the proposed plans and I will be pressuring Haringey Council and Fusion to reconsider their position in order to save this cultural gem."

Planned work at Park Road includes refurbishing the pool, expanding the gym, building three new studios and sprucing up the fitness suite, improvement work at the lido, moving the cafe and revamping the pool changing rooms.

The £6.365million project is part of a £15m programme of improvement works being carried out by Fusion at Park Road, Tottenham Green and Broadwater Farm community centre, in Adams Road, Tottenham.

Following the decision, the diving boards at Park Road will close on April 23, with improved facilities at Tottenham Green opening on July 4. In the interim period, Haringey Aquatics members will train in Waltham Forest.

Patients will benefit if land at hospital is sold

Takeover bid chief's pledge to Chase Farm campaigner

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

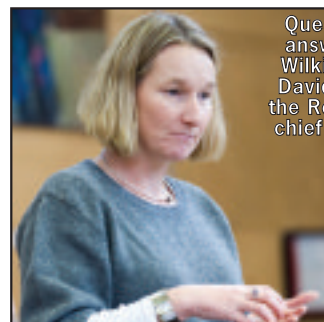

HEALTH chiefs have promised that any money made from selling off land at Chase Farm Hospital after a takeover by the Royal Free will be reinvested for the benefit of patients.

Bosses from the Royal Free Hospital, in Hampstead, were grilled by campaigners and councillors when they presented the case for the proposed acquisition of the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust at a North and Central London joint health overview and scrutiny committee meeting on Friday.

Hospital trusts need to be financially strong enough to achieve foundation status this year, and as the Barnet and Chase Farm trust had been deemed unable to achieve that level of financial stability, the Royal Free showed interest in a takeover two years ago.

Managers are hoping to start operating as a new trust in July. Campaigners have raised repeated concerns that the move could lead to asset-stripping of Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield.

Kate Wilkinson, of the Save Chase Farm campaign, pressed David Sloman, the Royal Free's chief executive, for an assurance that no land would be sold before the takeover was finalised and the hospital was managed by a trust with foundation status. Mr Sloman said: "We are always looking to see how we can make the best use of the assets we have. Selling some of the land at Chase Farm may be a sensible thing to do, but at the moment there are no detailed plans."

"You have my commitment that any sales at the site will be to the benefit of residents in Enfield."

Tim Peachey, chief executive at Barnet and Chase Farm, which has a £16.9million deficit, added: "There are no plans to divest ourselves of any land before the acquisition occurs."

Speaking after the meeting, Mrs Wilkinson said: "It is high time the NHS publish detailed plans for exactly what investments they are going to plough into the Chase Farm site.

"It must be made very clear because after the Chase Farm downgrade, the people of Enfield no longer have any confidence in politicians or the NHS."

Before a merger, any money gained from sales would go to the Treasury, but foundation trusts are able to retain the receipts of land sales.

The Royal Free, which has a surplus of £7.8m, submitted a business case for a takeover to the NHS Trust Development Authority last month and Monitor, the health service regulator, has begun a three-month assessment, which is expected to be completed by the start of May.

Praise for 'lower than expected' mortality rates

A HOSPITAL in the heart of one of the most deprived areas of the capital has been praised for its "lower-than-expected" death rates.

North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, was one of just 12 health trusts in England with "lower-than-expected" death rates between July 2011 and June 2013.

Research carried out by the Health and Social Care Information Centre compared the level of expected patient deaths following treatment, with the actual number of deaths in hospitals across the country.

Hospitals' mortality rates were either graded as "lower than expected", "as expected" or "higher than expected" – and North Mid was one of just 12 trusts in the country to be included in the first band of figures.

North Mid chief executive Julie Lowe said she was "delighted" at the figures, insisting they proved how high the standard of care is at the hospital.

"This key measure shows how well we perform nationally when it comes to the quality of care we provide," she said. "We continue to strive to provide high quality care to all our patients and are delighted to be among the 12 highest performers in the country."

The data comes from a period before the closure of the accident and emergency department at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, on December 9 last year.

Since that date, patient numbers at North Mid are expected to have risen. Mortality data since the downgrade is not yet available.

Pensioner hopeful of getting mould issue off his chest

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A RETIRED council caretaker has been battling chest infections for months because of mould that has steadily spread throughout his home.

Widower Michael Shirley, 67, of Naylor Grove, Ponders End, first saw the black and green mould spreading through his bedroom before Christmas.

However, after working for Enfield Council he knew that if he reported it in the weeks before the holiday period, it was likely get lost in the system.

So, Mr Shirley waited until the new year to report it to Enfield Homes.

While his health steadily deteriorated, he waited four weeks for anyone to come out to investigate the source of the green and black mould that had turned his bedroom into a breathing hazard.

The pensioner found himself sleeping on a sofa in the living room in a bid to escape the fungus – and when an engineer finally arrived to investigate, he told Mr Shirley that the problem would be solved by installing a vent in the attic.

But Mr Shirley was not satisfied – and when a friend helped him investigate his loft space, they discovered plastic sheets filled with condensation lying underneath the roof insulation.

Speaking to the Advertiser on Monday morning, the pensioner said that he had immediately told the council, but that the earliest date he was given for any repair work was in four weeks' time.

"My son can't believe the state of my home when he comes to visit," said Mr Shirley. "He told me that he has never seen anything like it."

"And when I went to the doctor with my chest infection and blocked nose, she immediately knew that I had mould in my house."

However, when the Advertiser contacted Enfield Homes, Mr Shirley suddenly saw some movement with his case – and he has since been given a much earlier date for work to start.

An Enfield Homes spokeswoman said: "We have spoken to the resident and will arrange an inspection of the property to coincide with the works, which are due to begin next week."

"Workmen will fit appropriate ventilation to the roof space which should go towards helping to reduce or eliminate the problem of condensation."

Mr Shirley was thrilled when we told him that the council had scheduled repairs to start as early as next week.

He said: "I am so pleased. I am sure that my health will start to improve now because recently I had four days away and it was so much better afterwards."

Private landlords could soon have to pay £575 for a licence

COUNCIL chiefs are consulting on a scheme which could see all private landlords in the borough having to apply for a licence to rent out their properties.

Under the scheme, known as additional and selective licensing, landlords would have to obtain a £575 five-year licence from Enfield Council to cover every property they own.

In order to secure a licence, landlords would have to provide references from tenants and have in place sufficient health and safety measures, as well as procedures to deal with antisocial behaviour and environmental crime.

The council believes ineffective management of privately rented homes has resulted in heightened levels of antisocial behaviour in the borough.

Ahmet Oykener, the council's cabinet member for housing, said: "The scheme is designed to tackle antisocial behaviour among tenants, as well as landlords."

"At the moment we don't have enough powers to force landlords to act, for example when tenants keep putting their rubbish out at the wrong time. By registering landlords we will be able to better enforce standards, for example around gas connections, health and safety and overcrowding."

Enfield follows Newham Council, in east London, which became the first authority in the country to introduce a compulsory licensing scheme for private landlords last year – an initiative backed by housing charity Shelter.

But the plan has been met with opposition and a petition against it on the council website has been signed by 33 people.

Mel Woodbridge, 55, of Lytton Avenue, Enfield Lock, a landlord with four properties in the borough, said: "Antisocial behaviour usually happens outside the home so I fail to understand how licensing landlords will make a difference."

On board: Enfield Council is proposing a licensing scheme for private landlords

"There are lots of powers the council already has to tackle it and there is a much bigger problem with this on council estates."

"I understand there are unscrupulous landlords out there, but why should decent landlords pay for the bad apples?"

Mr Woodbridge said he was also intending to start a petition against the proposals.

The council estimates that there are 27,500 private rented properties across the borough, making up around 20 per cent of all homes – more than double the size of the sector compared to a decade ago.

The consultation period ends on February 28.

MPs rail against tardy train firms

Rail-ly frustrated:
Enfield North MP
Nick de Bois

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN MP has issued a rallying cry in parliament calling for a radical overhaul of how multi-million-pound contracts are awarded to train companies.

Nick de Bois, whose Enfield North constituency includes three railway stations served by First Capital Connect, was the driving force behind the Westminster Hall debate, during which he launched a blistering attack on the company's performance since August last year.

The Conservative made an impassioned speech in front of a raft of MPs including Robert Goodwill, parliamentary under-secretary of state for transport.

"A commuter from my constituency will pay £1,560 annually for the privilege," said Mr de Bois. "It is interesting to note that on every pound spent by the fare-paying passenger, FCC sees a net return of three per cent."

"That would not be unreasonable if service standards were maintained at the highest level. Fares have increased substantially, but customers are not benefiting from real choice."

He demanded commuter satisfaction be taken into consideration when decisions are being made as to who should run the service.

Tory colleague David Burrowes, who also has FCC stations in his Enfield Southgate constituency, told the debate that in the three months leading up to Christmas, the company had not met punctuality targets on 83 per cent of occasions.

He added: "I am not sure whether any of my constituents are present but if any of them had tried to attend this debate, they would have struggled to get here on time."

"They would have been greeted by the news that there were delays of between 14 and 18 minutes."

"They would have heard not only about delays, but that the train was no longer going to call at Enfield Chase, Grange Park, Winchmore Hill, Palmers Green and Bowes Park, owing to an earlier broken-down train. Sadly, that is typical."

However, Mr Goodwill gave a lukewarm response, saying: "There are signs of improvement, notwithstanding the recent severe weather problems, and we will watch the situation closely to ensure that those improvements are built on in the existing franchise and the next."

He added that when the government considers future bids for the franchise, the points made in the debate "will be at the forefront of their mind".

A representative of FCC attended the debate and a spokesman told the Advertiser: "We share the frustration of people in Enfield."

"Signalling and power failures, compounded by weather problems, account for the vast majority of delays for trains that travel through Enfield."

"Our focus now is working with Network Rail to help address this so that we can run the train services that our passengers expect and deserve."

Councillor who discovered confidential file is rapped for revealing its contents

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COUNCILLOR who blew the whistle on confidential data found lying in the middle of the former Southgate Town Hall has been punished for revealing the extent of the security breach.

Southgate Green ward councillor Henry Lamprecht was with Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes in October 2012 when the pair came across a raft of official documents left strewn in the former debating chamber of the town hall.

One particular document caught their attention as the name of eight-year-old Victoria Climbié was written across it.

The youngster was murdered by her great aunt and her boyfriend in Tottenham in 2000.

The document detailed some aspects of the child's care when Enfield social services were briefly involved in the case.

However, despite the fact that the pair removed the documents from the building, which was the council's archive until 2009, to a secure location, a complaint was made against Mr Lamprecht over the fact that too much information about specific Enfield officers was contained in documents Mr Burrowes was photographed holding by the Advertiser.

This week Mr Lamprecht told this newspaper that after the stash was discovered, there was an initial investigation into the matter – but that gradually “it descended into a blame game”.

Lying empty: Councillor Henry Lamprecht with Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes in the old Southgate Town Hall

To his utter shock he then received a letter from the authority telling him that a complaint had been made against him by a council officer and he was facing a standards board hearing.

“I find it very strange,” said Mr Lamprecht, “and I don’t know what their agenda is. Really, they are behaving like a police state.”

“This is the sort of stuff left lying around. Nobody challenged us when we went in – there were contractors all over the place, and when people were filming in there, anyone at all – extras, actors, directors – could have casually come across this stuff.”

However, despite Mr Lamprecht’s written submission to the standards board which stressed that he only told the Advertiser about the find because it was in the public interest to expose the mistake, the council ruled that he had breached paragraph 12 of the council’s member code of conduct.

The regulation states that a councillor must not disclose information given to them in confidence or acquired by them “that you believe is of a confidential nature”.

As he had not initially co-operated with the investigation, Mr Lamprecht believed he was being made a scapegoat for the council’s failings – he was also rapped on the knuckles.

The councillor was told his punishment would be a press release being sent to local newspapers.

Use it or lose it – health chief warns residents over urgent care centre

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

CONCERNS have been raised that the new urgent care centre at Chase Farm Hospital is failing to take pressure off nearby accident and emergency departments.

Data collected by NHS England reveals that in the period between the week ending December 15 last year and the week ending January 26, an average of 460 patients per week attended the urgent care centres at Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and Barnet Hospital.

The centres, which opened in October last year, are for anyone needing non-life-threatening medical treatment or advice. They were established to relieve pressure on A&E services at North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, and Barnet Hospital.

But the figures have sparked worries that the centres are not fulfilling that aim.

Both North Mid and Barnet have taken on additional patients following the closure of Chase Farm's A&E department on December 9 last year.

Barnet A&E missed its target to treat 95 per cent of emergency patients within four hours in six weeks during the seven-week period – while the A&E unit at North Mid fared better, but still failed to meet the target in four of the seven weeks.

"The plan was that most people would continue to be treated at Chase Farm after losing the A&E, but this has not been the case," said Alev Cazimoglu, chairwoman of Enfield Council's health and well-being scrutiny panel.

"The vast majority of people are still going to A&E at Barnet, North Mid or elsewhere."

Ms Cazimoglu added that if the number of patients using the service continues to be low, the urgent care centres could be removed.

"If people do not use the service, we might lose it," she added. "Low attendances could be used as an excuse for another cut."

"The NHS needs to make a real effort to promote the urgent care centres and GPs must refer more patients."

The Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust said that at least ten per cent of people attending A&E do not need to be there and can be treated at one of the urgent care facilities.

A spokeswoman said: "We would encourage patients to use the urgent care centres for urgent but non-life-threatening illnesses and injuries."

"Patients will be seen quickly, have access to the same diagnostic tests and be seen by doctors and highly trained nurse practitioners."

The urgent care centres are open seven days a week, between 9am and 9pm.

The Barnet and Chase Farm trust was asked for a breakdown of the figures for the two centres – but was unwilling to provide the information.

A&E hit by beds shortage at hospital

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

RENEWED calls have been made for the reinstatement of A&E services at Chase Farm Hospital after a leaked letter said that Barnet Hospital's emergency unit found itself in a deep crisis due to a lack of beds 12 days ago.

The pressures were revealed in a letter from Jacqui Bunce, associate director of the East and North Hertfordshire Clinical Commissioning Group, on January 31, in which she urged GPs to refer patients to other hospitals.

On that day, 19 ambulances were left queueing outside the hospital, in Wellhouse Lane, High Barnet, because of a lack of beds.

The letter also said that nine patients were left waiting for a bed at the hospital's acute assessment unit.

NHS England figures show that in the week ending February 2 only 81.9 per cent of A&E patients were treated within four hours at the hospital, while 126 emergency patients had to wait between four and 12 hours before being admitted to a ward.

The hospital has missed the government target of treating 95 per cent of patients within four hours in eight out of the last ten weeks.

Kieran McGregor, of the Save Chase Farm campaign, said: "This is further evidence that the decision to close Chase Farm's A&E was flawed. There needs to be an immediate reinstatement of front-line services. The Royal Free takeover would be an opportunity to do this."

Nick de Bois, MP for Enfield North, said: "I am disappointed that we had to

Under pressure: Ambulances had to queue outside Barnet Hospital due to a lack of beds in accident and emergency find out about this through a leaked letter. I am hoping to see a convincing plan of action because this is not a sustainable position."

Barnet Hospital was given £23million last year, partly to expand and modernise its emergency department to take additional patients from Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, whose A&E services were shut in December.

"The hospital trust has also used part of £5.1m in extra winter funding to reopen wards for inpatients at Chase Farm.

But Alev Cazimoglu, chairwoman of Enfield Council's health and well-being scrutiny panel, said this was merely a "sticking plaster".

"The NHS needs to have a proper look at Enfield services and draw up proper funding allocations," she said.

A spokeswoman for the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust added: "The trust experienced high numbers of attendances and ambulance arrivals to A&E on January 31.

"Barnet Hospital received support from local hospitals and non-urgent ambulances were diverted. There was a full range of services available for patients with additional staff on duty."

WHAT is it about people saying that they want something, and when they are given it don't use it?

In all of the surveys we have done at Millfield Theatre over the past six years, the biggest thing that people say they would like to see more of is drama.

And yet when we put drama on the stage our audiences dwindle down to a trickle – a very high calibre of trickle, but a trickle nonetheless.

Is it that we have misunderstood the answer? I have interpreted the answer to the request for more drama as people wishing to see more plays on stage.

So last month we put on Ibsen's Hedda Gabler and Shakespeare's Othello, which were enjoyed by a lovely, but small audience.

Have I got it wrong? Do people just want more drama to take place in their transaction with us?

In our recent audience survey, when describing Millfield, the word most often used to describe us is "friendly".

Maybe we are just too friendly and the drama people would like from us is some old-fashioned barbed theatrical rudeness – in the style of Oscar Wilde and Noel Coward perhaps?

If you'd like to see the latter, please let me know and I'll undertake the appropriate training with the Millfield staff to make them less friendly.

But if our initial interpretation was right and it is plays you would like to see, I can highly recommend Marc Day's Coffee Shop Monologues, Julie McNamara's Let Me Stay and St Monica's Players' evening of one-act plays The Players Present All at The Dugdale Centre this season.

Selfish parents making life hell

RESIDENTS of Saxon Way, Charter Way and Lakenheath in Southgate are sick and tired of the thoughtless attitude of parents whose children attend Wolfson Hillel School, in Chase Road.

These inconsiderate parents try to park their cars as close to the school as possible and are totally unconcerned about the welfare of children and pensioners in the area.

In Lakenheath and Saxon Way, they park across the corners of roads making visibility for drivers coming out of side roads virtually impossible.

Meanwhile, in Charter Way, they park opposite vehicles that are already parked. And, if they really run out of spaces, they park across residents' drives.

We complained to the school last year and the then acting headteacher put a "nicey, nicey" note in the school newsletter. The parents ignored it.

Now we have contacted the current headteacher, Kirsten Jowett, and she told us she would take a look at the situation when she got a window in her busy schedule. Perhaps after a child has been maimed for life or killed?

It's high time the borough's parking enforcement team swamped this area of Southgate at 8.15am and 3.15pm and issued tickets to these selfish people.

Perhaps then they might start to get the message.

Or maybe parents could walk their children to school instead of driving?

Colin and Karen Fenn
Saxon Way, Southgate

Parking issues: The Wolfson Hillel Primary School

Ticket machines are no substitute

I WONDER why there has been so little discussion about the rights and wrongs of closing all London Underground ticket offices?

It may be that many folk have season tickets or Oyster cards, but certainly not everyone does.

And anyone elderly, or with any sort of disability or in a wheelchair, is going to find it harder to use the ticket machines.

I hope this solution to saving money will not spread to our local overground stations.

At Winchmore Hill, we have a wonderful station master, as I like to call him, and I would like to pay tribute to him.

Abdul has helped me many times in buying a ticket outside of the Freedom Pass hours and also in booking longer-distance trips.

He is ever patient, friendly and polite and I just hope he will never have to be swapped for a machine.

Jean Robertson-Molloy
Arlow Road,
Winchmore Hill

Whatever the figure, there are still too many bookies'

YOUR report of the January 29 "Use planning powers to stop spread of bookies'" state that there are 140 betting shops in Enfield.

Fortunately, this is not correct. There are 79, 20 of which are located in Edmonton. As a council we do not like the proliferation of betting shops, but I think we should use the accurate figures so we know the size of the problem.

It is a shame MP David Burrowes, while speaking out against the spread of betting shops, voted against a motion in the House of Commons which would have stopped the use of gaming machines inside these shops.

These machines give huge payouts and it is estimated they are worth more than £40million a year to the gaming industry.

Blocking of these machines – a recent arrival in these shops – would have helped stop people entering the premises in the first place.

We will continue to lobby the government to change the law and give powers to councils to limit the spread of these shops – and maybe our Conservative

MPs will join us in that struggle.

Chris Bond
Cabinet member for environment and parks, Enfield Council

'Proliferation': There are 79 betting shops in the borough

A heightened risk of fly-tipping

ENFIELD'S Labour council is proposing to put up the charges for bulky waste items to be collected from households as part of the 2014/15 budget.

The proposed increase for the first collection is four times the rate of inflation – under the previous Conservative administration it was free.

The Conservatives did not charge for the collection of bulky waste items such as microwaves and televisions from homes because it was known that if you charge, people will dump them instead.

The increase in the removal charge will only make fly-tipping more attractive.

Councillor Joanne Laban
Shadow cabinet member for environment

Criticism was short-sighted

I AM writing to contradict Councillor Jon Kaye's accusation that the current Labour administration has one of the worst records in London when it comes to supporting people with visual impairment (Letters, Advertiser, January 29).

This, according to the Royal National Institute of the Blind, would be sad if true. Thankfully, this is not the case.

However, he is correct up to a point.

In its recent survey of joint strategic needs assessments, the RNIB mistakenly used the assessments produced by the previous Conservative administration – of which Cllr Kaye was a member.

The result was to place Enfield among the 56 per cent of London councils which provided little or no information, in their assessments, of the needs of residents with actual or potential sight loss or visual impairment.

The RNIB reassessed Enfield's position when made aware of the assessments published in July 2013 by the current Labour administration.

I'd like to reassure residents that not only is the RNIB happy with the excellent – its words, not mine – way Enfield is now treating sight loss, it is also looking forward to working with us in the future – as we are with it.

Don McGowan
Cabinet member for health and adult services, Enfield Council

Thank you all

WHEN my husband collapsed in the Waitrose store in Enfield recently, the staff there could not have been more helpful and sympathetic. They called immediately for an ambulance.

The two female paramedics who arrived quickly were so professional and reassuring, taking him immediately to North Middlesex University Hospital.

I am glad to say that my husband is now back home and recovering.

These days we do not hear enough about such caring medical staff who richly deserve our praise and support.

Flooding fear as brook overflows

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AS parts of the country languish under lakes of sewage-filled flood water, residents in the east of the borough are looking on anxiously as river levels rise.

Turkey Brook, in Turkey Street, overflowed on Friday morning and although the waters began to recede that afternoon, 98-year-old resident Gladys Sinfield admitted that the situation had prompted fears that the street would see a repeat of the floods which overwhelmed Montagu Road, in Edmonton, 14 years ago.

And she believes it is the management of the brook, rather than the constant deluge of rain, that has caused the stream to burst its banks.

"The brook itself is the problem," she said. "It has been completely neglected. We used to see people cleaning it and taking leaves out – but since the Environment Agency took over running it, it has just gone to pot."

However, the pensioner admits that as heavy rain pounded the country over the past two months, the waterway has been inundated with council officers carrying out checks.

"The MP was even here," Mrs Sinfield added. "We have seen more officers checking the brook over the past few days than ever before."

The west of the borough has not escaped unscathed and in Broomfield Park, Palmers Green, residents have been startled by sudden flooding of two paths.

"We already have four ponds in the park, we don't need any more," Derwent Road resident Sevket Gul told the Advertiser.

Anxious: Gladys Sinfield beside Turkey Brook, in Turkey Street, Enfield

He says the floods are a result of newly-built embankments that he believes have been designed without drainage.

An Enfield Council spokesman said: "Additional drainage will shortly be added to the scheme."

Cabinet member for environment Chris Bond added: "The risk of flooding at Turkey Brook has been reduced by raising two footbridges and modifying the floodplain within Whitewebbs Park to store more water upstream of populated areas."

"We are aware that water levels were raised in this area over the weekend and we will be monitoring them closely and working with residents in the area to support them in the coming days."

The Environment Agency said the flood risk for all of Enfield for the next week was classed as "low".

Extra primary school places are on the way

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

PARENTS' prayers could be answered after a council pledge that there will definitely be 60 extra primary school places in the borough this September.

Powerful lobby group the South West Enfield Action Team has announced that after a series of discussions with Enfield Council, there is now a cast-iron guarantee in place that there will be a two-form entry school available for Southgate and Winchmore Hill children in seven months' time.

Gonul Daniels, chairwoman of Sweat, is thrilled that finally parents will have the option of sending their child to a good school nearby rather than be forced to send them by bus to the other end of the borough.

"I am so delighted," she said. "I feel like our campaign has been successful and is actually getting somewhere."

Enfield Council has confirmed that there will be added places for 60 primary school children starting school this September – but so far it will not say which school will be expanded to make room for the new pupils. Local authorities have been banned from setting up brand-new schools.

A spokesman admitted that officers were in the final negotiation stages of confirming where the new two forms of entry will be.

He added: "In discussions with the Sweat campaign group, the council acknowledged the need to provide an extra 60 primary pupil places in the south-west of the borough. The council has considered projects to achieve this and the most viable is in the final stages of development."

The new places are in addition to Barnet's Ashmole Academy announcement last year that it is seeking approval to open its own primary school in Southgate, available to pupils in 2015.

'Delighted': Action team chairwoman Gonul Daniels

Council company bid to help the homeless

COUNCIL chiefs are due to approve plans to set up a company which will buy up properties in the borough to house homeless families.

The project would see the company, which will be wholly owned by the council, buy homes and rent them out at below market rent rates in a bid to reduce the cost of housing families in temporary accommodation.

The move is expected to be approved by Enfield Council's cabinet tonight.

In December, there were 2,188 such households in Enfield, with 480 living in expensive bed and breakfast accommodation.

Due to benefit cuts and rising rents, housing benefit often no longer covers the full rent of a property – and for shortfalls in rent, claimants can apply to the council for help.

Finance chiefs estimate the authority could face a £3.3million demand on its budget next year as a result.

Ahmet Oykener, cabinet member for housing, said setting up the company would help reduce that bill and enable the council to work with families to tackle the issues that have led to their homelessness, before finding them a more permanent home.

He said: "There is a shortage of cost-effective temporary accommodation and rents are increasing, placing major pressure on our budgets."

"We expect more people than ever before to need temporary accommodation in years to come."

"This is not a sustainable position and we need to do something inventive to ease housing pressures."

The company would focus initially on buying existing properties, but could also fund new-builds in future.

Edward Smith, shadow member for housing, said: "This is a significant decision."

"We are worried about these proposals given the state of the council's finances."

"It involves potentially buying hundreds of properties and this venture will add to existing levels of debt."

"A lot of it depends on the amount of purchases and where the homes are."

"We are currently looking for answers to those questions."

The first tranche of funding for the project will be decided tonight and, if agreed, the council will apply for a loan to the Treasury's Public Works Loan Board in the next few weeks.

Prosecuted: The owner of Oriental Chef, in Enfield Town

Unhygienic restaurant boss banned from food business

A RESTAURATEUR has been banned from running a food business again after failing to improve hygiene standards.

Enfield Council brought a prosecution against Quan Mai (Vanessa) Yang, 43, for breaching seven food hygiene regulations at Oriental Chef, in London Road, Enfield Town.

Haringey Magistrates' Court heard last Thursday that inspectors visited the restaurant six times between June and December last year and discovered a catalogue of failings, which twice forced the immediate closure of the restaurant.

The offences included poor hygiene procedures, storing pre-cooked food in open, unchilled containers next to raw meat and poor cleaning and pest control.

As well as the ban, Ms Yang, from Cricklewood, north-west London, was ordered to pay costs of £2,398.56.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for environment Chris Bond said: "The state of this restaurant was nothing short of a disgrace.

"When our inspectors visited these premises, they found a quite abysmal standard of cleanliness, hygiene and pest control.

"And despite trying to work with the business owner over an extended period of time, there was scarcely any improvement."

Cabinet member for finance and property

Andrew Stafford added: "When the owners of food businesses show no inclination in ensuring their premises do not jeopardise the health of their own customers, we need to take firm action.

"We honestly felt in this case that the only way to properly protect the public from food poisoning or worse was to prosecute the owner and do everything we can to prevent Ms Yang from ever running a food business again."

Hygiene rating stickers are displayed on doors of restaurants and can be checked online via www.food.gov.uk/ratings, or there is a mobile app available which can be downloaded for free.

Spud you like? Here's BRITISH people obviously love chips, because in one year we eat almost three billion meals containing the delicious potato delight.

To put that into context, you would need more than 1.6million potatoes to make that amount of chips – weighing the same as 4,000 jumbo jets or more than 14,000 blue whales.

Ahead of National Chip Week, from February 17 to 23, we have picked out a few places across Enfield to tantalise your tastebuds.

Chickenshed creative director establishes inclusive drama projects for children in the Far East

Theatre spreading its wings to China

By Kim Inam
kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

INCLUSIVE drama is emerging in China with a bit of help from a theatre company from Southgate. In the past 18 months, Dave Carey, director of creative development at Chickenshed Theatre, in Chase Side, has visited the Far East four times as part of a project to establish a creative environment for mainstream and disabled children to come together.

Initially invited to attend a conference encouraging non-governmental organisations and social enterprises from across the globe to share ideas, Dave met Pan Yu, from Aimier, a group working with disabled children in Hunan province.

Thanks to sponsorship from the German Asia Foundation, the pair have since worked together to train Chinese practitioners in techniques to encourage children of mixed abilities to enjoy performing together on exchange visits between the two countries.

Dave has just returned from his latest trip, which saw the children, five of whom work with Aimier, and 25 students from a school in Changsha, take part in a 20-minute performance based on the folk stories of the Monkey King and Anansi.

"All the barriers go when everyone is playing theatre games together," Dave explains.

"Our experience is it's the parents and the adults that bring emotional baggage. It's coming on to the agenda there how they deal with disenfranchised parts of society.

"And we understand from the people we have met, it seems that China is looking at different ways to educate their children and introducing a creative element."

Speaking about the country's human rights record, Dave said he found China one of the most welcoming countries he has ever been to.

He said: "You are not walking around thinking, 'This is a threatening environment to be in'. You can have dialogue about areas that you think are controversial. You always feel that people are putting themselves out to get to know you and be friendly and hospitable."

"It is fantastic, I love it. It is such a visceral place, in terms of the colours and sounds. It's so different from here."

The work of Chickenshed in China is being filmed by the area's biggest TV station – and Dave hopes that will bring in funding to create a permanent inclusive theatre project in the area.

Feedback from the latest course, which took part during the Chinese New Year celebrations, included the mother of a boy with Down's syndrome saying she has now changed how she communicates with her son.

"It's a fantastic validation of what we do," he added. "Even if we've made a difference to just one family, that's worth it."

Coffee shop's birthday proves a treat

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

A taste for helping others: Karen Mercer, of My Coffee Stop

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

A COFFEE shop entrepreneur celebrated five years of business by supporting other independent outlets.

Karen Mercer, co-founder of My Coffee Stop, on platform 1 at Enfield Chase railway station, spent last week celebrating by visiting different retailers and buying their produce to share with her customers.

"If I was selling coffee and cakes and going home at the end of the day and that was it, that wouldn't be satisfying for me," explained the former Enfield resident.

"There's an intrinsic enjoyment and motivation that makes me want to actively help others in their business. That's what makes it exciting for me."

Karen, who moved to Shepton Mallet, in Somerset, last summer to set up a second branch of her shop, was in north London last week to mark her fifth year of trading.

She shared chocolate bites from Bryxies Bread House, in Baker Street, Enfield, with her customers last Tuesday and orange cake bought from the Enfield Enterprise Pop Up Emporium, in Southbury Road, the following day.

"The way I value our business is not by how much money we make," Karen confides. "As long as we have enough to live on and we are sharing our experience and knowledge with other businesses, I get a real buzz in seeing others succeed."

During the past five years, the shop at the station, in Windmill Hill, has become a community hub, raising funds for Southgate-based inclusive theatre company Chickenshed through a book-swap initiative and boosting fellow businesses with the shock cash mob scheme, as well as showcasing the work of artists on its walls and having concession stalls in store.

Karen and her shop have become known for the use of social media, from accepting orders, to training other businesses on effective and engaging ways of using the mediums.

"I've been trying to get businesses not on social media to understand you can change shopping into an event and that they can be the masters of their own destinies," she added. "I really want to encourage independent shop owners to do that."

My Coffee Stop is open daily from 6am to noon and can be followed on Twitter @MyCoffeeStopUK or via the Facebook page www.facebook.com/MyCoffeeStop

United: Volunteers and service users at the coffee morning

Scheme aiming to keep older people warm over the winter

FUNDRAISERS were encouraged to do something heart-warming last Friday to help older people stay warm this winter.

Age UK Enfield took part in Bobble Day, part of the national charity's Spread The Warmth campaign, which it was hoped would prompt residents and workers to get sponsored to wear something woolly or buy a bobble badge.

The local branch of the charity hosted a coffee and information morning at Fortuna Mobility, in Crown Road, Enfield.

It included hand and feet treatments, blood pressure checks and information sessions.

Tony Seagroatt, chief executive of Age UK Enfield, said: "You can help us to warm up Britain by wearing an Age UK Enfield bobble badge or organising a woolly swap with colleagues. Whatever you do will help to raise vital funds."

The money raised will help the charity to provide winter benefit checks, as well as nutritious meals at its Active Life Centre in Enfield and home visits.

Any businesses or schools that want to get involved should contact Daniela Sanna at Age UK Enfield on 020 8375 4120 or visit www.ageuk.org.uk/bobbleday for more information.

Still thrilling... and shocking

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

WITH the death of any artist arguably still at their creative peak, there is always a strange hiatus before their legacy is written into stone.

With a playwright or a composer, their words and notes live in that form for eternity.

Different actors and performers will probably give new meaning to each performance, but audiences know the form in which the artist will live on.

With choreographers, however, things are not so straightforward.

When German Pina Bausch died in 2009, the dance company she had founded was left without its founder and leader.

And when it was decided that her works would be preserved and performed as she intended with dancers carrying on without her to keep her legacy alive, there was a fear that her challenging, provocative, avant-garde works would be preserved dustily in aspic, slowly decaying into dry and dated museum pieces.

But in Tanztheater Wuppertal Pina Bausch: 1980, the choreography thrills and shocks in equal measure – much as it did when it was first performed at Sadler's Wells in 1982.

1980 is not for the faint-hearted. With speech, mime, movement, song and nude sunbathing, it is not dance as we expect it.

Visually, it is compelling because of its difference. The performers are all different shapes, sizes, ages and nationalities.

So rather than the traditional body beautiful athleticism we have come to expect from dance – the audience are instead treated to a feast of body types – from the beautiful blonde Australian, to the sultry German frau of uncertain gender.

Strange things happen before the audience's eyes – and rather than shoe-horning the action into a straightforward story, the scenes and snippets serve to build an emotional distillation of how our childhood fears and loves never really

Visually compelling: 1980 includes speech, mime, movement and song as well as dance leave us, shaping us into the adults we become.

Although this is not an easy mindless watch, it is a rare opportunity to see a work made by arguably one of the most influential choreographers of the 20th century.

And if you don't mind matter-of-fact nudity, then the performance is well worth venturing into the unknown for.

● 1980 continues at Sadler's Wells, in Rosebery Avenue, Islington, until Sunday. The ticket office is on 0844 412 4300.

Plum alternative way of marking Valentine's Day

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

IF you are sick of the saccharine hearts and red velvet tackiness of Valentine's Day, a band of soul rockers are offering an "alternative" way of celebrating.

Plum Nellie, a seven-piece band with two north London friends at its core, will be performing their Motown-inspired original music on February 15 – giving any member of the anti-cuddly toy and chocolate heart brigade the ideal way of dancing away their blues.

The band's co-founder, 27-year-old Sam Dean, grew up in Edmonton and developed his passion for all things rock and soul after spending his teenage years forming bands at his alma mater – Edmonton County School.

But Sam revealed that it is only since he met bandmate Joe Glossop at a blues bar in London's West End that his dreams of music success have started to materialise.

And now, after carefully honing their material for four years, they have put out an EP of five original songs. It is available online from iTunes and CD Baby.

But if you want to see Plum Nellie in the flesh, then head to the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, on Saturday evening.

Soul music: Plum Nellie, including Sam Dean, right, will be performing at the Dugdale Centre

Acknowledging that for form's sake the band might have to give a nod to the romantic overtones of the weekend, Sam said that they might play one or two slow songs.

But he is adamant that the band will be offering an "alternative" Valentine's night out on the town.

"We are inspired by 1960s' soul music because the music we listen to comes from those iconic labels of that decade like Atlantic Records," said the songwriter and performer.

"I think our tastes are reflected in the music that we write and perform."

Saturday's show starts at 8pm and tickets costing £12 (£10 concessions) can be bought from the box office on 020 8807 6680, or online for £11/£9 at www.dugdalecentre.co.uk

Scouts honoured after being chosen to represent the UK

Youngsters selected to take part in 2015 world jamboree in Japan

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

TWELVE Scouts from Enfield, Southgate and Edmonton are preparing to represent the UK at the 23rd world jamboree in Japan next year.

The lucky dozen will be part of a 3,500-strong UK delegation which is going to the celebrations in Kiraraha, Yamaguchi City, in July and August 2015.

The 12 will be joining 30,000 Scouts from around the world to camp and work together, learning about each country's cultures and faiths, acquiring new skills and taking part in adventures.

The group, selected from 160 applicants, met for the first time earlier this month at the Frith Grange camp site, in Frith Lane, Mill Hill, where they got to know each other and planned fundraising events to cover the £3,600 fee per person to attend the jamboree.

Ellie Way, 14, who is a member of the 18th Edmonton Scout group, said: "I'm very proud to be selected to represent Enfield and London at a world gathering. Going to Japan will be very exciting."

Ben Conway, 16, a member of Enfield's Hillyfields Explorers, said: "Scouting has giving me lots of opportunities for new experiences, but this is bigger than anything I've done before. Japan will be amazing!"

Scouts will be gathering at the Peace Dome in the Japanese city on the 70th anniversary of the dropping of the nuclear bomb on Hiroshima.

Stephen Way, of Greater London North Scouts, added: "There is a jamboree every four years and the idea is to get young people from all over the world together to work together for peace."

"The first jamboree was held in London in 1920 and the idea behind it was for young people from all over the world to come together and make friends to prevent another war. When the Scouts come back, they will have a broader world view and pass their experiences on to Scouts in their groups and districts, and many Scouts then go on to take on leadership roles."

Japanese adventure: Ben Conway, 16, Ellie Way, 14, Lydia James, 14, and Sophie Wooden, 15, are among those who will be going to the world jamboree next year

The Scouts' fundraising efforts will kick off with a dinner and quiz event at Highlands School in World's End Lane, Winchmore Hill, on Saturday, March 22.

The event starts at 7.30pm and tickets are £10.

The right time to borrow

Are you thinking of moving this year? If you're putting it off until the summer months, consider the upcoming changes in mortgage regulations. Gemma Daysh from Ellis and Co (Edmonton & East Enfield) explains why now may be a better time to buy your next dream home.

On the 26th April 2014, new mortgage regulations will be enforced as a reaction to the Mortgage Market Review. This could result in fewer mortgage approvals and a longer application process, making the moving process more stressful.

The Mortgage Market Review (MMR) which began in 2007, was a comprehensive review of the mortgage market, triggered by a trend of over-lending from banks during the property boom of 2005-2007. During this prosperous time, the mortgage market clearly worked well for some whilst causing significant hardship for others. The previous regulations during the property boom were ineffective at preventing high risk lending and borrowing, leaving many mortgages they could not afford. The MMR and the regulations set to come into play in April will still allow low risk lending and borrowing, whilst preventing the poor, high risk decisions we saw in the past.

So what does this mean for you? Lenders will become responsible for assessing whether you can afford the loan. This includes verifying your income. It will be more difficult to get a mortgage and more people will be turned down if they are asking to borrow close to or at the limit of what they can afford.

Lenders must also check whether you will be able to afford expected rises in interest rate, preventing loans that people can only afford whilst interest rates are low.

Potential buyers can still borrow an interest only mortgage but they must provide proof of a credible repayment strategy.

To borrow, in most cases you will have to talk to a mortgage advisor. As a result, most borrowers must receive professional advice rather than left to research independently.

In short, from April 2014, the application process will be longer, more complicated and more invasive. As lending regulations tighten, you will have to endure lengthier interviews and provide more detailed documentation. Gemma believes securing your mortgage now, could be the better option.

Hitting the heights in crowded market

By Iain Dooley

IT'S still easy to be reminded of chunky Shoguns and rapid Lancer Evolutions when thoughts turn to Japanese car maker Mitsubishi.

Back in 2010, the firm introduced a compact SUV in a bid to grab some of the action in, at the time, an evolving market sector.

Fast forward to today and the ASX has been given a subtle makeover.

It also costs a little less than before as it tries to take a slice of the increasingly popular compact "soft-roader" SUV market.

At launch, the ASX's appearance aped that of the now departed Colt supermini, but the slightly angular look does much to give the ASX an "edge" among the more rounded competition.

It's the same inside, with the ASX's cabin clearly at the more durable end of the scale and active families will no doubt approve of the tough cabin plastics and their bash-proof qualities.

That's about as rough and tumble as the ASX gets, though.

Mitsubishi's latest updates include a greater level of sound-proofing to boost cabin refinement, while the standard specification has been given a welcome uplift. For example, there is now Bluetooth connectivity across the range, for example.

Furthermore, along with the existing 1.6-litre 115bhp petrol and 1.8-litre 114bhp diesel engines, Mitsubishi has introduced a six-speed automatic transmission option tied to the larger 2.2-litre 148bhp from its Outlander model.

This flagship combo also comes with full-time four-wheel drive – an option on the 1.8 diesel – while the rest of the range ships in wallet and city-friendly front-wheel drive.

On the road the 2.2-litre ASX proves to be a brisk and refined performer, with seats higher than in a conventional family hatchback but with little pitch and roll when on the move.

Visibility is good, as you'd expect for a lofty SUV like the ASX. With weighty steering and a responsive auto gearbox, confidence levels are high regardless of the conditions.

Leave the all-wheel drive system alone and it will direct power quickly to the wheels that need it most, although there is the option of locking the split equally fore and aft if more traction is needed.

All in all, the ASX easily punches above its weight both on and off road.

Keen to boost the car's appeal in an increasingly crowded marketplace, Mitsubishi has both simplified and enhanced its trim levels.

The three-model line-up is better equipped, with all models receiving air-con, alloy wheels, remote central locking and seven airbags.

Move up a grade and you gain larger

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;

(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or

(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. No wonder you ♥ paper

Did you know that forests in Europe, which provide wood for making into paper and many other widely used materials, are 30% larger than in 1950? In fact they're increasing by 1.5 million football pitches every year.*

Paper is a powerful communication material and it's made from natural and renewable wood. Which is all great news if you need the impact that only printed documents can deliver.

ADEBAYOR SECURES IMPORTANT VICTORY

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

EMMANUEL ADEBAYOR insisted the result was all that mattered after scoring the decisive goal in Tottenham Hotspur's crucial 1-0 victory at home to Everton in the Premier League on Sunday.

Spurs were very much second best in the first half, but managed to survive until the interval unscathed and got their reward for an improved display in the second period when Adebayor struck in the 65th minute as they moved above their visitors into fifth place in the table – three points adrift of Liverpool in fourth.

"I'm delighted, but not about the goal, about winning the game," Adebayor said. "If someone else scored, I'd still be as happy. The most important thing was winning the game, not who scores."

"We knew it was going to be tough. We played against a good team in Everton. The key was to win, and now we move on to the next one."

"When we got the free-kick I shouted to Kyle Walker and then made a sign. He saw it and gave me a great ball, the most important thing for me was to bring the ball down as quickly as possible and then finish."

"The first touch was important, because I brought the ball into my run and I didn't have any other choice but to shoot as hard as possible with my left foot, which I did."

And head coach Tim Sherwood was well aware of the importance of the three points as Tottenham look to keep pace with in-form Liverpool in the search for Champions League qualification.

"We're delighted with the result," he said. "The performance can be better, but it's about character – grinding it out when you're not playing well."

"A lot of games are going to be like that. It was chalk and cheese between the first and second halves, but in the end we've come out on top."

Tottenham's match winner: Emmanuel Adebayor scored the only goal to give Spurs a vital 1-0 victory over top-four rivals Everton on Sunday

"I asked them to put some pressure on higher up the field. We were standing there admiring them."

"I didn't want too many gaps between the midfield, but we were too deep with them. We had to push them on, and work as units, and still have our threats on the counter."

Sherwood added: "Everton didn't have a shot in the second half. Our game-plan was to put pressure on high up the field, it didn't change from the first half, we just didn't apply it well enough."

"You want to have chances and 20 shots on goal, but if your ratio is one shot on target and one goal, I'll take that."

"It was a huge match, it was like a cup final. I don't want to rubbish our performance, but sometimes people win cups when they haven't played well."

Dawson urges Spurs to build on crucial win

MICHAEL DAWSON has urged his Tottenham Hotspur team-mates to ensure that they carry on the momentum gained from Sunday's win over Everton by securing another positive result at Newcastle United tonight.

Captain Dawson was part of a Spurs defence who had to hold firm under considerable pressure in the first half against Everton before an Emmanueal Adebayor goal gave them a 1-0 victory which enabled them to climb above their visitors in the table.

However, Tottenham remain three points behind in-form Liverpool in the race for Champions League football, and Dawson knows that they can ill afford to lose any further ground.

"We had a good win on Sunday and we go to Newcastle looking to push on again," the skipper said. "We can't rest on our laurels just because we've had a good result against Everton. We want to finish in the top four and we're chasing Liverpool, that's our aim."

"We went into the game with Everton a point behind and now we've jumped ahead of them and we're only three points behind Liverpool – we're in the mix."

"Everton are a top team, they've had a good season and they would have been ahead if it wasn't for Hugo Lloris. He made a world-class save and we rode our luck, but I thought we were magnificent in the second half and deserved the win."

"The goal was a great ball from Kyle Walker, Ade pulled away from the centre-half, and it was a great touch and a great finish. That set us up for the victory."

Adeoye seals national indoor title

MARGARET ADEOYE produced a fine run to win gold in the British Athletics Indoor Championships in Sheffield over the weekend.

The event doubled up as the trials for the forthcoming World Indoor Championships, and the competitor from Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club staked her claim for selection by triumphing in Sunday's final of the women's 400metres – leading from start to finish as she clocked a time of 52.77seconds.

"It felt good – I had to get a few wise words from my coach because 400m is so different from 200m," she said. "I know my pace for 200m and that's to run as fast as I can, but you've got to be a bit more tactical in the 400m."

"I was playing around with paces in the heats and the semis and then in the finals I thought forget trying to pace and run – whatever your legs give, give it your all."

Adeoye was the only athlete from the club to win a medal, but Chijindu Ujah ran well to come fourth in the men's 60m (6.59secs) and there were fifth placed-finishes for Sean Safo-Antwi in the same race (6.62secs) and Chris Kandu in the men's high jump (a personal best 52.77secs).
